This project deals with the problem of the difficulties faced by students of Arabic as a second or foreign language in Malaysia, in speaking and communicating in Arabic with full fluency, confidence and effectiveness.

Based on the researchers' review, it is possible to identify these difficulties in the following points: -Avoid speaking and communicating in Arabic inside and outside the classroom. - Finding it difficult to discuss in Arabic with others, especially with Arabic native speakers. - Avoiding asking questions and engaging in controversy in academic and dialogue forums. It has become clear to researchers, that limiting learning Arabic at merely classroom is not sufficient to develop their communication and conversational skills, based on the principle that language to be acquired must be practiced, and that teaching curricula, no matter how strong and comprehensive they are, remains incapable and insufficient.

For this reason, this specialized comprehensive designed program comes to examine the motivating mechanisms and parallel student activities that will develop the skills of speaking and communication, including debate art, given that the focus here will be on the art of debate associated with all its items, which are proven to be effective.

- As recommendation, we are urging universities in Malaysia to follow the example of the International Islamic University and establish debate clubs in the Arabic language to improve the communication and linguistic skills of their students, and to graduate men of tomorrow armed with public speaking abilities, a strong personality, and argumentation qualifications.
